Mourning the death of Bob Stovall

Our very dear friend and strong SECO supporter, Bob Stovall, passed away last week. He single-handedly programmed our registration and payment modules for years. His helping hand and very informative presentations on all forms of social networking will be missed. Our condolences go out to his wife, Maureen, and family. SECO17 Survey coming to your inbox this Thursday 7/26

Help us make SECO17 the very best meeting ever for small and mid-size community owners by completing this 3-question survey.

If you're a small or mid-size community owner anxious to fill vacant lots to increase cash flow and the value of your communities, and upgrade your communities with new homes and great residents, you'll want to be at the SECO Conference in Atlanta, Ga. on October 10-12. Here's what you'll find there:

- 350+ small and mid-size community owners and other industry personnel anxious to share their experiences, tell you what works and what doesn't - and learn

- from you
- Brandnew Community Series Homes (CSH) on display, one of which will be raffled off to a lucky winner (you may walk away with the title to the home or its cash value).
 - 50+ exhibitors, vendors, and sponsors providing every product and service necessary to improve the management and efficiency of your community
 - 4 Pre-SECO workshops - not down-and-dirty, leave-you-hanging teasers presentations, but roll-up-your-sleeves and get 'er done!
 - 2 days of presentations, panel discussions, reception, lunches, and coffee breaks
 - A brand new, top-notch venue at the Atlanta/Marietta Hilton Hotel Conference Center
 - All at the lowest price of any such meeting in the industry, because SECO is a 501(c)(3) non-profit with tremendous cost-saving support by our sponsors, exhibitors, and vendors.

Special Thanks to Dave Jackson of Keller Williams, Bill Burnside of RoofWrap, & Ken Corbin of Call Ken Corbin for passing along email addresses allowing us to reach more small & mid-size COs. Please send us YOUR lists so we can continue to expand our Community Owners' networking platform!

We never share contacts you provide with anyone else!
